ALLIANCE FOR FAIR SUGAR POLICY

A handful of states produce and process the vast majority of sugar in the U.S. Unfortunately, employment in the sugar-containing products industry is trending downward. The modest reforms to the U.S. sugar program included in the Farm, Food, and National Security Act of 2024 will help support economic growth in the entire food and farm economy, including food manufacturing jobs in all 50 states.

Minnesota produces one-third of all sugar beets in the U.S.

Florida produces 50% of all U.S. sugarcane

Louisiana produces 48% of all U.S. sugarcane

Few States Benefit from Current Sugar Policy

Small businesses and manufacturers that use sugar as an ingredient operate in all 50 states and need reforms to thrive and grow.

But our current policy is designed to benefit sugar production in just a few states.
