State-by-State, U.S. Sugar-Using Industry Supports American Employment & Economic Growth

U.S. Sugar Program Puts These Jobs Across the Country at Risk

American workers are employed by sugar-using businesses in every state across the country. From local bakeries to larger-scale processing plants that produce iconic soft drinks or candies, our communities rely on sugar-using businesses for economic vitality and stable employment. However, the outdated U.S. sugar program places these jobs in jeopardy.

A successful and modern sugar policy will support American jobs across the whole farm and food economy. By modernizing current policies, Congress can protect the interests of American workers and farmers alike.
